

CAPITAL PASTORS URGE WORLD PEACE IN SERMONS TODAY

Arbitration and Religion
Forward Movement Discussed in Pulpits.

Ratification of the peace treaties and the work of the Men and Religion Forward Movement are two subjects which are receiving general recognition in the churches of Washington today.

This morning the pastors spoke in favor of the peace treaties, today having been designated by the American Peace Arbitration League for nationwide church assistance.

In some of the Washington churches the pastors were assisted by prominent peace advocates. Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace Society, delivered the address at the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, in Twentieth street, this morning.

Unity Sunday.

Today is designated as "Unity Sunday." Among the pastors who declared it to be their opinion that the ratification of the peace treaties would be a long step in the direction of peace were the Rev. Arthur W. Spooner, the Rev. Henry W. S. Millington, the Rev. Francis J. Grimké, the Rev. Merritt Earle, the Rev. Hubert R. Johnson, the Rev. J. Marvey Dunham, the Rev. J. J. Dimen, the Rev. H. Barstow, the Rev. H. Allen Griffith, the Rev. W. E. Wiseman, the Rev. C. Everett Granger, the Rev. T. E. Davis, the Rev. Henry J. Shandelle, the Rev. George S. Duncan, the Rev. J. A. Applewall, the Rev. C. W. Carter, the Rev. Charles Wood, the Rev. Charles L. Pate, the Rev. Clarence E. Wise, the Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, the Rev. J. E. Fothergill, the Rev. W. R. Wedderburn, the Rev. George M. Cummings, the Rev. E. T. Mowbray, and the Rev. Edgar C. Powers.

Meetings This Afternoon.

Those interested in the work of the Men and Religion Forward Movement arranged a series of meetings for this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Seven Washington churches in various parts of the city were named as meeting places. The Rev. Randolph McKim spoke at the meeting for the Central district in Mt. Vernon Place M. E. Church. The meeting for the Northwest district in Mt. Pleasant Congregational Church has for its speaker the Rev. J. M. M. Gray. The other meeting places are the Rhode Island M. P. Church, Ninth street church, the Rev. E. S. Stucker; Fifth Baptist Church, the Rev. L. L. Wilkey; West Presbyterian Church, the Rev. H. S. Pinkham; M. E. Brotherhood Hall, Anacostia, the Rev. Homer C. Stuntz.

CARNEGIE TELLS RULES OF SUCCESS

Iron Master, Seventy-six, Points Easy Path to Wealth and Happiness.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Andrew Carnegie is youthful in spirit, even if the calendar does insist that he's turned seventy-six.

Mr. Carnegie was in rare good humor when he received the reporters in his library yesterday, which was his birthday anniversary. His interviews followed a quiet day spent with his family. His one disappointment was the reception he gave in the afternoon to the friends and advocates of universal peace.

"To be successful, to be rich," said Mr. Carnegie, "not that riches are anything to bring about—do not drink, do not smoke, do your duty and a little more, and, young men, get married." The last with an impressive wave of the forefinger.

"But—?"

"No buts, young man. I know what you're going to say, but I tell you that $25 a week is enough to live on—yes, for two. Never enter a saloon, the fairest flowers of our young manhood wither in their blighting atmosphere. And don't smoke. Young men draw tobacco into their lungs and blow it out, and old men do the same with snuff and sneeze it out, which is a great trial to anyone within sneezing distance. Live within your income, and use your head. Don't break your employer by the following of foolish orders, and some day you may meet the old man's daughter, and marry her, or win wealth on your own account. I believe it's good for a rich girl to marry a poor man. But money, what is money?"

Anyone Can Make Money.

A reporter ventured to suggest that Mr. Carnegie was something of an authority on the subject.

"Oh, yes," he rejoined, "but anyone can make money. And it's really a great nuisance to get rid of it wisely. I find it so, but here's a list of the twenty men who have made the world what it is. Who of them had wealth?"

Adjusting his steel rimmed spectacles Mr. Carnegie produced a sheet of paper and read. Seven of the men were Scotch, and of Shakespeare, who heads the list, he remarked: "As the old Scot said, 'had brains enough to have been one.'" The soft voice of the ironmaster read these names: "Shakespeare, Morton, James, Neilson, Lincoln, Burns, Gutenberg, Edison, Siemens, Bessemer, Mushet, Columbus, Watt, Bell, Arkwright, Franklin, Murdoch, Hargreaves, Stephenson and Symington."

Laying the list of the great respectfully on his desk Mr. Carnegie

Andrew Carnegie's Birth- day Philosophy.

"Anyone can make money."

"Two can live happily on $25 a week."

"I wish Roosevelt would take my advice."

"Present day problems are simple."

"The Standard Oil and Tobacco trusts are laughing up their sleeves."

"Get married, young man, 'tis heaven."

"Do not smoke or drink if you would be rich."

"It will be a disgrace if President Taft isn't re-elected."

passed on to the topics of the day, and more particularly to the question of Theodore Roosevelt. Not that he was inclined to be harsh with Roosevelt, but, nevertheless, he admitted the colonel was slightly at times and took a lot of space in the Outlook to say a very few things.

Says Roosevelt Spurges.

"That's the trouble with you, Roosevelt, I keep saying to him," said Mr. Carnegie. "You spurge all over the page. Say what you want, and then keep still about it, but do be terse."

"I think Mr. Roosevelt's articles are confused. I do wish he'd come to me and take my advice, but—ah, well."

Mr. Carnegie sighed.

"These present day problems are simple enough," he continued, "if we'd only look at them sensibly. We must have combination, and we must regulate it. The way to regulate it is to have a court to fix a maximum price. The present court proceedings are all fuss and feathers and the Standard Oil and Tobacco Companies are laughing up their sleeves at us. President Taft will see this in time. He's a fine fellow, and it'll be a disgrace if he isn't re-elected."

With one of those sudden changes of expression peculiar to him, the ironmaster took down from the wall a framed poem by Joachim Miller.

"I read this to King Edward once," he said chuckling. And read:

"Hail, King Ned."

"That's me," said the King, ungrammatically, but truly.

"Hail, fighting Ted."

"That's Roosevelt," said the King, and then Mr. Carnegie fairly shook with laughter. "Here's the rest I read him."

"But I'd rather twist Carnegie's wrist."

"The open hand in this hard fist."

"Than shake hands with you, all."

WASHINGTONIANS IN ANNAPOLIS TO JOIN HEROES' WELCOME

Will Aid Demonstration in Celebration of Navy Victory Over Army.

Many Washingtonians are in Annapolis today for the big demonstration that will mark the return tonight of the team that yesterday vanquished the Army gridiron warriors on Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Preparations for a rousing welcome of the heroes have been made by the 700 midshipmen who left Philadelphia, the scene of hostilities, at 6:30 o'clock last night.

With the approach of the train bringing in the conquerors, the whistles of Annapolis will shriek a triumphant welcome. Then the future officers of Uncle Sam's navy will forget all about military bearing and dignity. On the shoulders of their comrades they will be borne from the platforms of the coaches to the waiting busses. Along the cobblestoned streets of historic old Annapolis, the wheels will rumble, but the famous L-N yell and the football songs will drown all that. With brooms on fire they will be escorted to the Academy "amid a blaze of glory." The torchlight procession is one of the most cherished demonstrations of a Navy victory. And unless this year is different from last, every broom and every waste basket that can be found in Bancroft Hall, the home of the 800 midshipmen, will be thrown from the windows for the big bonfire in front of the main door. Doubtless the busses carrying the heroes will be pulled up the high steps, and player after player will have to mount the top of it and make a speech. Then the Japanese bell, which is never rung except when the Navy has vanquished the honorable Army, will send its tidings of joy over the campus.

The first cold snap is the most dangerous, it finds so many people unprepared—too thinly clad for bad weather.

The return of the football squad is considered one of the features of the big game, and many Washington people who returned to this city last night went to Annapolis today to witness the "final curtain" of the great spectacle presented yesterday.

Merchants All Favor Seventh Street Lights

New lights on Seventh street are now assured. The committees of merchants appointed at the recent meeting to call upon the other merchants between Massachusetts and Pennsylvania avenues have nearly completed their work and report to Isaac Gans, chairman of the committee, that everyone is in favor of the proposed better illumination of the street and willing to stand a pro rata share of the expense.

It is hoped now to have the lights installed, within two months. They will be sixty-six feet apart and of the same style as the new bronze standard lamps which have been set up near the White House, out Sixteenth street and along few other important thoroughfares.
